We understand that application was made this week to Prosecuting Attorney Chitwood by one of our citizens for a search warrant to search the mining plants of Madison county to discover if possible, the hiding place of Republican prosperity we heard so much about before the election in 1908. —Fredericktown Democrat-News.

ED REGISTER—I wish to call the attention of the public to my immense stock of Easter Goods. A most beautiful selection of Ladies' Misses' and Children's Spring Hats, Dresses and Skirts. A big line of Low Quarter Shoes. Men's and Boys' Suits and Pants and Ties. A host of New Spring Goods. "We can save you money." B. N. BROWN.

The opening at Mrs. Woodside's millinery store last Saturday was a most complete success. The ladies thronged the place all day and greatly enjoyed the feast of beautiful things that Mrs. Woodside and Miss Gilliam had arranged for the occasion. The store was a veritable bower of loveliness and elegance, and the display was enchanting and pleasing to the feminine eye.

N. Warren of Bellevue was an Ironton visitor last Thursday. Mr. Warren tells us that his daughter, Mrs. Muse, of De Soto, recently made a settlement with the railroad company for the death of her husband, Everett Muse, which occurred in the railroad yards at De Soto a couple of months since. Mr. Warren, who has not been in good health, is much improved, we are glad to say.

We this week print the announcement of George W. Marshall, who is a candidate to succeed himself as Marshal of the City of Ironton, subject to the will of the voters at the city election next month. Mr. Marshall has filled this position for a number of years and has proven himself a capable, faithful and painstaking official. As a man and citizen he is held in highest esteem by all, honest and worthy, and his many admirers and friends will rally to his support on election day.

Again the soft spring days have come, The laziest of the year, When one would rather fish' go Than stay a-draggin' here.

Let's take the rod an' hook an' line, An' dig the squirm' bait; Then hunt the for'tie fishin' holes An' sit an' fish an' wait.

I love to watch the bobbin' cork A tremblin' now an' then, An' when it sudden under goes My soul it sings amen!

All day I sit an' watch the cork Till back begin to fall, An' if I make a catch or fail It matters not at all!

For as I fish an' dote I think How happier I than they Who stay at work and drudgin' waste The pleasures of the day!

I may be pardoned for giving place to the following "bouquet" from the hand of a stranger. His name is S. J. Pointer, and he lives at Newport News, Va. He has been reading the paper for the past six months: "Some time ago I saw an advertisement of the Murdock-Crumb Co. Not wishing to buy a pig in the bag, I did not take any of their contracts; but in order to watch their movements I sent for your paper for a limited time, for which I consider it I have had value received. I have read your paper from start to finish, and find it, in my opinion, far ahead of the ones I am taking further down the line. I think very strong of locating between Ironton and Shreveport before next winter."

I am told that Bro. Rev. Fuller Swift is carrying a petition around town asking signatures to it. The petition is an appeal to Mr. G. W. Kanouse to run for Mayor. Toward Mr. Kanouse I have the kindest feeling and hold myself honored in his friendship. I understand he has no desire to make the race, and the purpose is to force him to do so, anyway. I wouldn't have mentioned the matter but for the peculiar fact some inconsiderate people—there are unreasonable knackers in all communities—are setting forth that the petition carrier is not a resident of the city, and has no vote here. They insist that, whether "Progressive" or not, the citizens of this town are capable of managing their own affairs. Ancient prejudice is hard to overcome.

Mrs. Wm. Trauernicht had a most unpleasant and somewhat startling experience Tuesday. She accompanied Mr. Trauernicht to Piedmont that day to attend a funeral. In making the trip from the town to the cemetery Mrs. Trauernicht and two other ladies were riding in the rear seat of a hack. As they were crossing a creek the seat tipped back, throwing the ladies out of the rig and into thirty inches of water. Mrs. Trauernicht underneath. The accident almost created a panic in the funeral ranks but the ladies were finally gotten out of the water and an examination revealed that, beyond a thorough drenching, they had happily escaped injury. As Mrs. Trauernicht was away from home, without a change of wearing apparel, her plight was anything but an enviable one, and when a belated train landed her and her liege lord in Ironton at seven o'clock that evening, they doubtless sang, "Home, Sweet Home!"

Last Saturday evening, shortly after 7 o'clock, Peter Cooley, colored, found the body of a man on the track on the steel railway bridge spanning Stout's creek, between Ironton and Arcadia. Cooley made no examination but at once notified the authorities who soon repaired to the scene. The man had evidently fallen from the south-bound passenger train which had passed over the bridge a few minutes before the discovery of the corpse was made. His skull was crushed in and both of his legs cut off at the ankle; the body was still warm and the blood dripping from the wounds. The remains were taken to Albert's undertaking establishment, but nothing was found thereon to reveal the man's identity. He had some seven or eight dollars in his pocket and a couple of postal card photographs of himself. That was all; nothing to tell who he was, whence he came, or whither going. The photographs evidenced that he was a fine looking boy. Probably twenty-two or three years old, five feet, eight inches high, and weighed about 150 pounds. He was dressed in a light greenish brown suit, with dark, narrow stripes. His hair was light and in his mouth were two gold-crowned teeth. All Sunday morning efforts were made to establish the unfortunate young man's identity and telegrams and phone messages were sent to various places north and south. In response to one of the telegrams Byrn Barnes, a young man from Centerville came up from Sabula on the afternoon train and positively identified the remains as those of Alvin Tate, of Centerville. He and Tate, who had been working in the lead mines in St. Francois county, had got on the train at Bismarck the evening before on their way to Sabula, whence they intended going to their homes in Centerville. They bought tickets to Ironton, intending to try and "beat" their fare on to Sabula. Barnes said that he and Tate had been drinking some beer in Bismarck before getting on the train. After the train left Ironton Tate remarked that he was going into the other coach and started out the door. That was the last Barnes saw of his companion. As they neared Sabula Tate's prolonged absence caused Barnes to grow uneasy and he sought in vain for him through the train, and when Barnes disembarked at Sabula and still his companion failed to put in an appearance he became thoroughly alarmed. He remained at Sabula that night and next afternoon came to Ironton and his evidence thoroughly established the identity of the dead man. A coroner's jury was empaneled and a verdict rendered in accordance with the facts here related. As soon as the identity of the deceased was discovered communication was at once established with his father, who is a Justice of the Peace in Centerville and a highly esteemed citizen. Next morning Sheriff Fitts and Assessor Parks of Reynolds county arrived in town, and took the remains to Centerville for burial.

Good schools, good churches, and fine people. We also have factories, saw mills and grist mills that are ready, at any time, to lend a helping hand to the community. We are also located on one of the best railroads in the state—the Iron Mountain. Just four hours' run to St. Louis, the greatest commercial center in the west. We are in the best fruit belt in the state. All kinds of fruit yield in abundance. The grass affords grazing nine months in the year, and for poultry raising our country cannot be excelled. Ask your doctor about these throat coughs. He will tell you how deceptive they are. A tickling in the throat often means serious trouble ahead. Better explain your case carefully to your doctor, and ask him about your taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.
